The day ended with a kamp wide kampf fire. Although a bit off key, we still belted our favorite kamp songs into the air. Before kampf fire started the entire kamp was running wild with kids and counselors trying to capture the opponent's circus gear and be crowned victor of "Capture the Circus". The evening fish fry, cooked up by the Lions, was preceded by another great day of sessions and open rec. There was horseback and shark riding (not at the same time) and even more circus practice. At this point in the week, kampers are honing their selected skill in preparation for the big show on Friday. The day started with a thinner than usually polar bear crew even though this was the warmest morning all week.

Kayaking Bug Infects Kids at Kamp KACE

Tom Barry brought his abilities, team, and kayak arsenal to Kamp this year. Tom's passion for kayaking is only matched by his passion to teach the sport to special kids. Tom and his team have been working one on one with some kampers, showing them next level skills and taking them on excursion kayak rides across the lake.

No Hair, Don't Care

Holly Frolek cut her hair in honor of her survivor brother Adam and her mother who was recently diagnosed. When Adam was diagnosed 27 years ago, Holly vowed she would cut her hair if someone else in her family got the "C" word. The act was dedicated to her family and Kamp KACE, a second home where they grew up and are now seasoned counselors. In thoughtful return, Kamp ruled "In the Lake."
