Rain (Again) Won't Spoil Kamper's Fun Day

A small morning lighting storm cancelled polar bear for the day, so kamper's got a free pass towards their perfect attendance. Morning sessions were replaced with a screening of Open Season in the mansion basement while the damp camp dried out in preparation for an afternoon-of-fun. The day really got going after lunch with the lone session for the day followed by free time and rest to prepare for the night ahead. Kampers with beautiful makeup and crazy hair started popping up everyone around Kamp, which must mean the pinnacle is coming closer. The campfire brought us all together one last time as we shared our wish and placed friendship sticks in the fire. After campfire Kampers rocked, raved, and swung their bodies to the awesome beats. During an intermission an amazing fireworks display took place in the meadow. Good night younger cabins and let's rock the older ones. Another great year is in the books and everyone made new friends but kept the old.

Singing in the Shower

Yesterday while in the girls' bathroom, we heard singing from the showers and 3 girls came out and singing Spice Girls 'Wannabe' followed by T. Swift. The captive audience was laughing at the dramatic dance moves and tone-deaf lyrics of the poncho girls. We think that the poncho girls should start a YouTube channel and their next song should be Old Town Road. All songs need to be recorded in the bathroom with Cabin 1 listening.

A Call From Your Friendly Neighborhood

Spiderman When spending some time with the nurses on Wednesday, Myles received a FaceTime call from his hero: Spiderman. Myles asked Spiderman how old he was (19), and how old he was when he was first bitten (15). Spiderman then told him that he wasn't aware he had been bitten by a spider until he was almost hit by a bus a stuck to a wall as he jumped out of the way. After the call, Myles was seen practicing his "Spidey" skills in the grass.

This Story is NOT a Joke

Only girls can play gaga at Kamp KACE for the rest of the week. Since the boys out-number the girls at Kamp, they always target them first which is unfair. The boys always want to win, they need to learn it's about having fun playing the game not just winning so that's why they are banned until they learn their lesson.

Singing in the Shower: A Different Perspective

Anonymous

In preparation for last night's bonfire, a few poncho wearing cabin 7 girls were singing their hearts out while showering after a wild ride on the orca. Their voices flowed throughout camp with some varying reactions. The beginning was rough, there were "shut-ups" and doors slammed but in the end the girl group, officially name "The Ponchos" were applauded by fans from cabin 1.

Dance Dance Revolution

By Jiry (Cabin 2)

The dance last night was really run. The girls got to dress up and some hairstylists came, and few girls got colored spray in their hair and they were really happy with it!

Thank a Nurse

By Jiry (Cabin 2)

The nurses have done an amazing job making sure nobody gets hurt, but if someone does get hurt, they make sure its not broken and they make sure it gets iced enough. And they have done an amazing job making sure everybody got their medicine(s). #huganursetoday

Dear Cabin 4

By Abbie (Cabin 2)

Dear Cabin 4,

If you want your squirrel and gopher back you must give up the moose chilling on the roof... or else. "Or else what?" you may ask. Well look at the picture. We shall end this!!!

Moose on the Loose!

By Liz and Carissa

There has been a moose on the loose at Kamp KACE. On the first day we saw it in front of cabin 4. The moose was seen with a squirrel, raon and gopher. A cabin attempted to steal the moose, but they realized that cabin 4 was earlier than they thought. By putting the moose on their own cabin roof! I guess the moose isn't on the loose anymore! Problem solved.

Trust Issues in Cabin 4

By Caydence

Some people have been over protective of the moose so they put it their roof. Just look on the top of cabin 4 for proof. They lost a couple of rodents in the front of their door. I WONDER WHO STOLE THEIR RODENTS?
